Reading

You can read a newspaper to find out information about your town, city, state, country, and the world.

Newspapers have certain text features such as headings, captions, side bars, and fine print.

What is a Heading?

A heading is the title of an article that is often written in large print. A well written headline will often grab your attention.

What is a Caption?

A caption is a short summary describing a picture or drawing. Captions help you relate pictures to a story and may inform you of additional details about the story.

What is a Sidebar?

A sidebar is a story or paragraph that accompanies the main story, detailing a particular detail that is related to the story. A sidebar may be placed on the side, within, or at the end of an article.

What is fine print?

The fine print of an advertisement is information written in a much smaller font than the rest of the advertisement. Fine print often includes drawbacks of a deal or sale at hand.

Using a Textbook

Textbooks are nonfiction books that are used to study of a particular subject.

Textbooks have a table of contents so that you may find particular subject topics easily.
